AN ENVCLEARIE OR Alphabet of Verbes, Neuters, Common, and Deponents, profitable and necessarie to all Students of Humanitie.

Likewise for Parsing an helpe extraordinary.

Collected and Composed, by William Darbishire Philosopher.

LONDON,
Printed by Tho[illegible]
1634.

To the Reader.

GEntle Reader,
Amongſt the manifold difficulties of Humanitie, inferior to none is the diſtinction of Verbes in their proper kindes. Which oppreſsing my weak faculltie, brought no ſmall confuſion, to mee an vnworthy frequentant, Eſpecially of Neuters ending in O, like vnto Actiues, and often explained actiuely, yet are they of a kind diſtinct from them, which Neuters (as Donatus & other affirme) formed paſsiuely are not Latine. Likewiſe of verbes common, which are formed paſsiuely, and yet in ſignification, are either Actiues, or Paſsiues. And laſtly, of Deponents which are alſo formed paſsiuely, yet for the moſt part, engliſhed actiuely. Which verbes confuſedly diſperſed, throughout the Ocean of Humanitie, and not parti- cularly

cularly expreſſed in our moderne dictionaries, occaſioned my beſt endeauours to free thee from ambiguitie. I therefore (by the Almighties aſsiſt) haue Alphabetically collected out of Authoritie theſe three precedent ſpecies. Which worke, although it may not ſo compleatly anſwer thy curious expect, yet let it ſuffice I haue performed my beſt. Had my vnderſtanding been eleuated, to a ſublimer ſpheare, thou ſhouldeſt not tolerate any defect. One precaution I giue thee, that when any old or abſolte verbe (in this Enuclearie) ſhall oppoſe thy peruſall, know that it is not here inſerted, to be vſed, but that thou maiſt know the ſpecies thereof, when elſewhere it ſhall accidentally occurre. If thou accept this mine Enuclearie, I ſhall poſſeſſe my wiſh, and will endeauour to gratifie thee with another worke. What emolument the diligent obſeruation hereof may produce, let experience demonſtrate. I haue not inuented, but faithfully collected, inſiſting vpon authorities; and intend (God willing) to augment, and more exactly perfect this my firſt fruit, and faults

of

of impreſsion, which in this firſt edition haue preuented my correction. So committing thee to his protection, from whom all ſcience is deriued, I deſiſt.

Thine obſeruant

WILLIAM DARBISHIRE.
